

“Spew-zilla” embraces meditation as way to lower scores

Mark ‘Spew-zilla’ Waring, long known as one of the most volatile personalities on the Red Neck tour, has shed the ‘Q’-link (yes, we know what ‘Q’ stand for) in favor of what Waring calls ‘taming my inner beast’.

Waring said, “yeah, I was cruising my usual internet porn sites and all of a sudden I got a pop up ad for Meditation of all things? I clicked it and the rest is history. Everything you need to know about it is on YouTube”.

Several tour Red Necks have noticed an inner peace with Waring that has never existed before.

Rodney ‘Sprinkles’ Collier said, “hey, I live with the guy and have never seen him so calm in my life. If it would cure my massive hooking problems, I may give it a try”.

Byron ‘Jail-bait’ Williams said, “I don’t think he will shoot lower scores necessarily, but I could see where he will save money by not breaking shafts from his errant flippy shots”.

Tour members are trying to get a copy of the Meditation program in anticipation of the tour debut of Scott ‘Man crush’ Masters who has reportedly thrown more than his fair share of clubs.

Waring has requested later tee times for this years trip stating, “I just think it would be nice to have a session on the beach. Imagine the euphoric feeling and enlightened state one could get with waves crashing in the background? We could all bring our Yoga mats and I could lead us. Some see it as a fad, but I see it as more of a tradition that could be repeated year after year”.

RED NECK TOUR TO TRAVEL BACK TO THE TPC OF MYRTLE BEACH

2010 marks a return to one of the highest rated tracks in Myrtle Beach, the TPC of Myrtle Beach.

The Fazio designed course is not the typical easy set-up the architect has been known for with some of the toughest par four’s and most visually stunning par three’s on the Grand Strand.

The course is highly regarded for its serene environment with a few forced carries over wetlands and a round that promises you will see few, if any other groups playing alongside yours. Expect to use every club in your bag on this pure test of golf where the final par 5 (reachable with two big blasts) may decide the tour championship this year.

Masters says 'no more three-jacking'

Some say its the long putter, others say the Heavy putter, while known three-jack Master, 'Man crush' Master's claim 'its all in the grip'.

Master's. who is making his tour debut this year will be the first Red Neck ever to employ the hacky-looking claw grip as his preferred method of putting.

'Super Mario' Sponcia said, "It just looks sad to have to resort to such a chop-style grip. I think I would try to go left-handed before I would do it myself".

Byron 'Jailbait' Williams, has (of course) monitored the big mans progress (or lack thereof) on the greens and has said, 'I think this is easier to fix than his flippy motion on his full swing, its simple'.

Master's said, 'hacky looking or not, I will do anything to stay below 38 putts per round'.

Wing contest to tighten in 2010

Immediately after Sam 'Spalding' Julian's last second defeat of Mark 'Spewzilla' Waring, tour officials began hearing cries from losing competitors about the contest being a 'beer drinking competition instead of a wing eating one'.

It seems the tour miscalculated the weight of beer vs. wings and this year will attempt to 'Spalding-proof' the competition so people like noted beer queer Byron 'Jailbait' Williams can have a chance.

The rules for 2010's contest are as follows:

1. The contest will run 1:30 and will begin when the first wings are delivered to the table.

2. Naked wings are worth 1 pt., battered wings are worth 1.5 pts.
3. A bonus of 7 pts. will be given for eating all 3 mile wings or 10 pts. for eating all 911 wings.
4. Beers are worth 2.5 pts.
5. The contest is mandatory for all Red Necks. The bill will be split by all competitors except the winner who will win free food/beer and will get his picture taken with Hooter's hottie's
6. If a competitor pukes before going to sleep, they lose and the next player in line will be crowned Red Neck Tour Wing Champion for 2010 season.

Player Profile:

Erik "Chernobyl, Twinkle Toes" Scott

The early 2010 season has wreaked havoc on the practice sessions of many Red Necks this year but 'Chernobyl' Scott has (according to F & G statistics) bucked the trend by spending up to 5 days per week, hoping to rid himself of the viral shank-chip, shank-pitch, shank-bunker-blast, and shanked full shot that has plagued his game for many, many years. Scott is a streaky player known for hitting tons of fairways with his patented 'twinkle toes' finish, but from 80 yards in, he is a car crash waiting to happen.

Scott said, "I have worked on all facets of my game and feel like Sponcia will come up empty when it comes to video footage of my normal bloopers around the greens".

'Sprinkles' Collier said, "Eric looks more balanced on the range than I have seen him in years, I think this may be his break out season".
